Wet Weather Spoil Sports

The biggest crowd that was ever in Didsbury was present on Monday last to take in the Sports and Ford picnic, and if the rain on Sunday had not made the roads almost impassable the crowd would have been bigger still, but cars could not get through from any distance north and south.

According to rough calculations and the gate receipts there were 1500 people in the grounds after the auto parade which, considering the threatening weather all day, should be a cause for congratulation to the committee who had the affair in hand.

FORD CAR PICNIC

The Ford car picnic helped to draw a crowd but unfortunately the weather again interfered with proceedings and while there was over 100 cars in the grounds the parade itself was hardly up to expectations because everybody was eager to get the sports going before the rain came on. Nearly all cars were decorated with flags but Mrs. J. C. Riner and Mrs. J. C. Stevens both had gone to some trouble in decorating their cars which presented a fine appearance. Mrs. Riner's car winning first prize with Mrs. Stevens a second.

There were Ford Cars from all over, but the Three Hills delegation perhaps came the furthest.

Several other places were to have been represented by Ford cars but owing to the heavy rains of Sunday which had made the roads impassable they were unable to come. A picture of the cars was taken on Railway Ave. before the parade started which will be placed in the Ford magazine and will be circulated all over the world.

Messrs. Pearson, Carstairs, and McCannon of Calgary were the judges.

THE SPORTS

The rain kept off just long enough to run off most of the horse races and the football game between Didsbury and Three Hills and also one foot race. In the football match Didsbury won by a score of 1-0, although Three Hills claimed a score in the first half which the referee decided was an off-side.

The horse races were of course the center of attraction for the large crowd present and the track was in fairly good shape before the first rain came up, but there were no speed records broken. The ladies quick hitch was perhaps the one race that caused the most fun although the last lady in the race lost out through the harness not being properly fastened.

A full list of prize winners will be given in next week's issue.

When the rain came on it was announced that the rest of the programme would be run off in the evening, but as the rain continued and was even worse at night both the athletic events and baseball game had to be called off altogether.

HAD LEG BROKEN

At the football game in the afternoon an unfortunate accident happened to Mr. Frank Kauffman, who is a member of the Didsbury football team, when he had the large bone of his leg broken just above the ankle. The accident took place near the end of the game and caused feeling of sincere regret. Frank is a very popular member of the Citizens Band and the baseball club as well as the football club who will all look forward to his quick recovery. One other member of the Didsbury football team was also hurt. Harry Siebel was kicked in the head but after a short time was able to get into the game again.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Three Hills residents were out in force, a great many of them coming across country in autos. Amongst the number a great many Didsbury old timers were noticed, Dave Witwer, Louie and Norman Kallfleisch, Augus Weicker, A. L. Seal, E. E. Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. Rollis.

The Didsbury Women's Institute conducted a big business during dinner and supper hours. People were lined up by the dozens waiting for a chance to satisfy the inneman.

The morning and noon trains brought in big crowds from neighboring towns.

The Citizens Band had their pictures "taken" in the morning when they opened up proceedings.

Flags were flying everywhere.

The Boy Scouts did a roaring business at the grounds in supplying the usual holiday refreshments. Their coffers are considerably replenished by the receipts, the sum of $43 above all expenses being realized.

A word of praise should be given to our many visitors on Monday. There was very little noise and no rowdism; it was an extremely well conducted crowd for which the authorities were thankful.

Did you notice how smooth everything run on Monday at the grounds. In spite of so many autos there was not an accident of any kind. The grounds and gate committees were on to their job.

Didsbury H.S. Win All Round

The Didsbury High School Cadet rifle team and baseball team travelled to Olds on Saturday last for friendly matches with the Olds High School. The local boys returned victorious in both contests, winning by four points in the rifle competition and by a score of 7-19 in the baseball game. The senior baseball team should copy the boys example and help them to put Didsbury on the map again.

The following is the rifle score. The range was 25 yards and the rifle used was the Ross 22, the larger rifles having been shipped away for other uses:

Cured Fifteen Years Ago of Piles and Eczema

By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment—Certificates That the Cure Was Permanent.

Some people have tried so many doctors and so many treatments in their search for cure for piles and eczema that they find it difficult to believe there is an actual cure.

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that it not only brings relief promptly, but brings about actual and lasting cure.

In 1897 Mr. Kitchenson, 88 Dufferin street, Peterborough, Ont., wrote as follows:—"I was troubled for thirty years with itching piles and eczema. I could not sleep at night, and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered my legs down to the knees, perfectly raw. I have tried every preparation I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and this Ointment effected a complete cure."

On Sept. 28, 1912, Mr. Kitchenson wrote as follows:—"I received a letter from you to-day, saying that you found on file a statement made by me 15 years ago. I have always given Dr. Chase's Ointment a good name since it cured me, and shall tell you how I came to use it.

"I had suffered for many years from eczema and piles, and had tried doctors and everything I could hear of in vain. Reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I purchased it at once, and was soon completely cured. That was fifteen years ago, so there can be no doubt of the cure being a permanent one. I have met a great many people who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Soldier's Queer Relic

A surgeon at the front, reflecting on the strangeness of the liking which most people have for preserving not only bullets, but portions of their anatomy, which they have lost during an operation, tells how in one case it proved very useful. "A soldier was brought into the — hospital the other day in a state of unconsciousness, and nobody could tell what was the matter with him. It might have been a case of cerebrospinal, for example. But luckily while going through his pockets they found a piece of parietal bone. He had evidently had it chipped off, or operated off, his head, and had kept it. So they were able to diagnose the case as that of some pressure of the skull on the brain."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS USED ELEVEN YEARS

Mrs. McEachren, Glencoe, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past eleven years for my children and have every reason to praise them as they always do good. Once a mother uses the Tablets for her little ones, she will use no other medicine. They are absolutely safe, pleasant to take and never fail to regulate the bowels and stomach. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

"Back to the Land"

There are now living in cities many men with fair sized families who have had experience in truck farming, and who are paying as much as $200 per year rental for a house and small lot. An equally good home, with twenty acres of land suitable for truck farming, might be had in the country at lower rental and be quite capable of yielding even larger net returns for the family than would the city occupations, remarks a bulletin issued by the Seed Branch, Ottawa.

WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life.

Westbrook, Me. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Manston, Wis. — "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicines but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since." — Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Manston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The Call for Wheat

The Demand For Breadstuffs Must Soon be Enormous

According to reliable statistics, there are tied up at the present time about two billion bushels of wheat, the production of the countries at war. This is in the vicinity of half the world's production of wheat. A recognized authority argues that, granting that the warring nations produce a one-half crop in the coming year, a deficit of one billion bushels will still be shown. The three countries upon which the filling of this deficit rest are Canada, the United States and Argentina. The combined output of these three countries is only 1,249,000,000; their exportable surplus would, of course, be much less, so it can easily be seen that the question is not one to be readily solved, and it behoves Canada to increase her productions as much as she possibly can, for when the war is over and trade begins to re-establish itself, and the nations undergo a process of rehabilitation the demand for all breadstuffs must be enormous.

Use Miller's Worm Powders and the battle against worms is won. These powders correct the morbid conditions of the stomach which nourish worms, and these destructive parasites cannot exist after they come in contact with the medicine. The worms are digested by the powders and are speedily evacuated with other refuse from the bowels. Soundness is imparted to the organs and the health of the child steadily improves.

Storing Coal in Water

Coal Immersed in Water Does Not Deteriorate as Rapidly as When Exposed to the Air

The advantages of storing coal under water where deterioration is much less than in the air, are appealing more and more strongly to engineers. It has been generally recognized that the gases concealed in the pores of the coal—oxygen in particular—are responsible for both heating and deterioration, and their escape should be prevented as far as possible. Coal immersed in water is practically sealed, and little oxidation takes place. Experiments have shown that coal kept under water for the space of three years lost less than 3 per cent. in efficiency, while supplies stacked in the open often show a decrease in value from 5 to 8 per cent. in single year. In tropical countries the decline is greater than in the temperate zones.

Internally and Externally it is Good. —The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kidney ailments, it has curative qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

Two Stories

A Cuban telephone manager got a vision of what Christianity ought to mean in the telephone business and dared to overrule certain orders from headquarters. His story and the story of what happened in the life of an American student in an English university "When the Higher Criticism Hit Him," will be told soon in the Sunday School Times, an international religious paper, published every week at 1031 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa. We have learned from the management of that publication that a three weeks' free trial of their paper may be had upon request (by post card) by any one interested in the Bible. If you wish the issues containing these two articles mention this announcement and they will be furnished as long as the supply lasts.

I consider MINARD'S LINIMENT the BEST Liniment in use.

I got my foot badly jammed lately. I bathed it well with MINARD'S LINIMENT, and it was as well as ever next day.

Yours very truly,

T. G. McMULLEN.

The Farm Hand's Wages

According to a bulletin recently issued by the Dominion Census and Statistics branch, Ottawa, the average wages, including board, paid to farm hands in Canada during last summer were: $35.55 for males and $18.81 for female help. For the year including board, the average wages were $323.30 for males and $189.35 for females, whilst the average cost of board per month works out to $14.27 for males and $11.20 for females as compared with $12.49 and $9.53 in 1910.

Average wages per month in 1914 were lowest in Prince Edward Island, viz., $24.71 for males and $14.48 for females. In the Western Provinces they were for males $39.13 in Manitoba, $40.51 in Saskatchewan and $40.26 in Alberta, females receiving $22.35 in Manitoba, $22.96 in Saskatchewan and $23.63 in Alberta.

Two Lancashire boys were expatiating on the relative merits of their fathers as musicians.

"My father is the greatest musician in the town," said one.

"Oh," the other said, "when my father starts every man stops work."

"How's that?" said the other.

"What does he do?"

"He blows the whistle for meals up at the mill."

W. C. T. U. COLUMN

The District Convention of the W. C. T. U. which was held on the 13th and 14th inst was an event of special interest to temperance workers, a good number of whom turned out in spite of the disagreeable weather. As space forbids a full report of the doings of the Convention, only the more important items will be included in this report.

THURSDAY SESSION

Mrs. McKinney read a letter from Provincial Secretary of W. A. of U. F. A. suggesting that all women's organizations unite in helping along the prohibition campaign. As women haven't franchise twas suggested a petition be gotten up and circulated by various women's organizations as W.C.T.U., W.A. and C.C. and signed by all women of the province.

Mrs. Reed moved that this convention pass a resolution of willingness to work in this respect.

Mrs. McKinney led the discussion on Essay contest. Our district is the only one in the province working this department and the Olds district had done most in this under Mrs. Aylesworth's direction. 75 essays were handed in.

FRIDAY SESSION

The report of the credential committee showed twenty-five delegates present and twelve unions represented.

A paper on "Business Methods" by Mrs. Faltand was helpful. This should be a study of every union that there might be mere efficiency and ability in doing business. Study annual report W. R. B. and leaflets. The business methods depend on officers. Use women fit for the position, not just because of popularity. Use women interested enough to give up a few personal pleasures.

Election of officers—President Mrs. Sharp, Lacombe; Vice-President, Mrs. Graves, Red Deer; Cor. Sec., Mrs. Hughes, Olds; Rec. Sec., Mrs. Millan, Wetaskiwin; Treasurer, Mrs. Falkland, Camrose.

In the afternoon Devotional Exercise was led by Mrs. Gathercole on Courage. Report of "Y" and paper from Wetaskiwin showed many ways a "Y" can work. Mrs. Reed gave a model "Y" and Mrs. McKinney gave a splendid talk to the girls, urging them to establish principles of active opposition to evil as it is not enough to be just good. You must do something. F. Willard said "A girl is most truly a lady who brings most souls under the Divine Touch."

Papers on Education by Mrs. Graves. Canvassing, Mrs. Misiner. Finance, Mr. Marshall.

The next convention will be held at Daysland.

Notices are being sent out, but because of changes of address they may not reach some owners of Brands, and all such are requested to communicate with the Recorder of Brands at Medicine Hat at once, giving a description of their Brands and their present address, when full information will be sent them with respect to renewal of the same.

Italy Now in Mix-up

Italy finally threw in her lot with the Allies on Sunday last. They have already met the Austrians who were beaten back. It is reported that German troops under Von Hindenburg will attempt a quick decisive defeat to discourage the Italians.

Roumania is reported to be on the verge of joining in with the Allies and Bulgaria has promised not to attack the former if she joins the Allies.

The Germans made some gains last week by again using poisonous gases.

In the Dardanelles General Von Sanders brought up a crack army corps to Kaleg Tepe and attacked the Australians and New Zealanders but was defeated with 2,000 killed and 5,000 wounded.

Russia claims to have forced the enemy to a defensive and that they have stemmed the German tide at last.

D. H. S. Literary Society

The last meeting of the Didsbury High School Literary Society was held in the Assembly room of the school on Thursday evening last. Unfortunately there were not as many of the public present as might have been to show an interest in the work. Mayor Osmond occupied the chair and a programme of songs, recitations and instrumentals were given by Miss E. Sexsmith, Mr. G. Johnson, Masters Arnold Liesemer, Ellis Barnes; the Misses Cleote Crowe, May Studer; Miss Kerr's room, the Octette and male Quartette. Rev. Mr. Marshall gave an address on free trade and protection in a very lucid and instructive manner for the young people present. After the programme Principal Howard and Vice-Principal Johnson showed a large number of lantern slides showing war conditions in France, which were very interesting. These slides were loaned to the school by the Department of Extension of the University of Alberta. This ended a very pleasant evening.

The Mystery of the Ravenspurs

By Fred M. White

Ward, Lock & Co., Limited, London, Melbourne and Toronto

The conversation proceeded fitfully, sometimes almost lively, now lapsing into silence. It was hard for these people to speak. They had no interests outside the castle; they found it impossible to follow social or political life. Daily papers arrived, but it was seldom that they were looked into.

The dinner came to an end at length, and then the family circle drew round the fire. Ravenspur was one of those big cold places where fires were always needed. Mrs. Gordon rose and walked to the door. Her husband's eyes followed her. These two were grey and old before their time, but the flame of love still burned bright and clear.

"You will not be long, dear," Gordon Ravenspur said. A somewhat sentimental remark in the ordinary way, but not in this place where the parting of a minute might mean parting for all time. Mrs. Gordon smiled back upon her husband.

"I am going to bed," she said. "Never mind me. I feel sleepy."

Gordon Ravenspur nodded sympathetically. He knew what his wife meant as if she had put her thoughts into words. She had been terribly upset over Vera and now that the danger was past a heavy reaction set in.

"Why should we sit here like this?" Geoffrey exclaimed. "Vera and Marion, I'll play you two a game of billiards. Come along."

Marion smilingly declined. She touched the back of Ravenspur's wasted hand.

"I am going to stay here just for a few minutes and take care of grandfather," she said; "then I will go to bed. Give Vera twenty in a hundred, and I will bet you a pair of gloves that she beats you easily."

The young people went off together and in the excitement of the game other things were forgotten. Vera played well and Geoffrey had all his work cut out to beat her. Finally Vera ran out with a succession of brilliant flukes.

"Well, of all the luck!" Geoffrey cried. "Let's play another game, but after that exhibition of yours I must have a cigarette. Wait for a moment."

The cigarettes were not in their accustomed place. Geoffrey ran up the stairs to his bedroom. He passed along the dusky corridor on his return. In the gallery all was dark and still, save for something that sounded like two figures in muffing velvet robes dancing together. It seemed to Geoffrey that he could actually hear them breathing after their exertions.

With quickening of his heart he stopped to listen. Surely somebody buried under many, thick folds of cloth was calling for assistance. "Who is there?" Geoffrey called. "Who are you?"

"Just under the Lely portrait," came a stifled response. "If you don't—"

The voice ceased. In that instant Geoffrey had recognized it as Aunt Gordon's voice.

Heedless of danger to himself he raced down the corridor, his thin evening pumps making little or no noise on the polished floor. Nor had Geoffrey lived here all these years for nothing. He could have found the spot blindfolded.

He could see nothing, but he could hear the struggle going on; then he caught the flash of something that looked like a blue diamond. It must have been attached to a hand, but no hand was to be seen. Geoffrey caught at nothingness and grasped something warm and palpitating. He had the mysterious assailant in his grip; perhaps he held the whole mystery here. He heard footsteps patter along the corridor as Mrs. Gordon ran for assistance. He called out to her and she answered him.

She was safe. There was no doubt about that. No longer was there any need for caution on Geoffrey's part. His fingers closed on a thin scraggy throat from which the flesh seemed to hang like strips of dried leather. At the same time the throat was cold and clammy and slippery as if with some horrible slime. It was almost impossible to keep a grip on it. Moreover the mysterious visitor, if slight, was possessed of marvellous agility and vitality.

But Geoffrey fought on with the tenacity of one who plays for a great end. He closed in again and bore the foe backwards. He had him at last. If he could only hold on till assistance came, the dread secret might be unfolded.

Then the figure took something from his pocket, the air was filled with a pungent, sickly odor, and Geoffrey felt his strength going from him. He was powerless to move a limb. One of those greasy hands gripped his throat.

In a vague, intangible way Geoffrey knew that that overpowering blinding odour was the same stuff that had come so near to ending the head of the family. If he breathed it much longer his own end was come.

He made one other futile struggle and heard approaching footsteps; he caught the gleaming circle of a knife blade swiftly uplifted, and his antagonist gave a whimper of pain as a frightened animal might do.

The grip relaxed and Geoffrey staggered to the floor.

"That was a narrow escape," a hoarse voice said.

"Uncle Ralph!" Geoffrey panted. "How did you get here? And where has the fellow gone?"

"I was close at hand," Ralph said coolly. "A minute or two sooner and I might have saved Gordon's wife instead of your doing it. See, is there blood on this knife?"

He handed a box of matches to Geoffrey. The long, carved Malay blade was dripping with crimson. But there were no signs of it on the floor.

"Let us follow him," Geoffrey cried eagerly. "He can't be far away!"

But Ralph did not move. His face was expressionless once more. He did not appear to be in the least interested or excited.

"It is useless," he said, in his dull, mechanical tones. "For in this matter you are as blind as I am. There are things beyond your comprehension. I am going down to see what is happening below."

He began to feel his way to the staircase, Geoffrey following.

"Are we never going to do anything?" the younger man exclaimed passionately.

"Yes, yes. Patience, lad! The day of reckoning is coming as sure as I stand before you. But to follow your late antagonist is futile. You might as well try to beat the wind that carries away your hat on a stormy day."

Mrs. Gordon sat in the dining hall, pale, ashen, and trembling from head to foot. It seemed as if an ague had fallen upon her. Every now and then a short hysterical laugh escaped her lips, more horrible and more impressive than any outbreak or fear of passion.

And yet there was nothing to be done, nothing to be said: they could only look at her with moist eyes and a yearning sympathy that was beyond all words.

"It will pass," Mrs. Gordon said faintly. "We all have our trials; and mine are no worse than the rest. Gordon, take me to bed."

She passed up the stairs leaning on the arm of her husband. Time was when these things demanded vivid explanations. They were too significant now. Ralph crept fumblingly over the floor till he stood by Marion's side. He touched her hand; he seemed to know where to find it. The hand was wet. Ralph touched her cheek.

"You are crying," he said, gently for him.

"Yes," Marion admitted softly. "Oh, if I could only do anything to help. If you only knew how my heart goes out to these poor people!"

"And yet it may be your turn next, Marion. But I hope not—I hope not. We could not lose the only sunshine in the house."

Marion choked down a sob. When she turned to Ralph again he was far off, feeling his way along the room—feeling, feeling always for the clue to the secret.

CHAPTER XII.

Geoffrey Is Put to the Test

The house was quiet at last. When these mysterious things had first happened, fear and alarm had driven sleep from every eye, and many was the long night the whole family had spent, huddled round the fire till grey morn chased their fears away.

But as the inhabitants of a beleaguered city learn to sleep through a heavy bombardment, so had the Ravenspurs come to meet these horrors with grim tenacity. They were all upstairs now, behind locked doors, with a hope that they might meet again on the morrow. Only Geoffrey was up waiting for his uncle Ralph.

He came at length so noiselessly that Geoffrey was startled, and motioned to him that he should follow him without a word.

They crept like ghosts along the corridor until they reached a room with double doors at the end of the picture gallery. Generations ago this room had been built for a Ravenspur who had developed dangerous homicidal mania, and in this room he had lived virtually a prisoner for many years.

After they had closed the two doors, a heavy curtain was drawn over the inner one, and Ralph stumbled his way to the table and lighted a candle.

"Now we can talk," he said quietly, "but not loud." Understand that the matter is to be a profound secret between us and that not a soul is to know of it; not even Vera."

"I have already given my promise," said Geoffrey.

"I know. Still there is no harm in again impressing the fact on your mind. Geoffrey, you are about to see strange things, things that will test your pluck and courage to the uttermost."

Geoffrey nodded. With the eagerness of youth he was ready.

"I will do anything you ask me," he replied. "I could face any danger to

"You are a good lad. Turn the lamp down very low and then open the window. Have you done that?"

"Yes, I can feel the cold air on my face."

Ralph crossed to the window and, putting out his hand, gave the quaint mournful call of the owl. There was a minute's pause and then came the answering signal. A minute or two later and a man's head and shoulders were framed in the open window. Geoffrey would have dashed forward, but Ralph held him back.

"Not so impatient," he said. "This is a friend."

Geoffrey asked no questions, though he was puzzled to know why the visitor did not enter the castle by the usual way. At Ralph's request he closed the window and drew the heavy curtains and the lamp was turned up again.

"My nephew," said Ralph. "A fine young fellow, and one that you and I can trust. Geoffrey, this is my old friend Sergius Tchigorsky."

Geoffrey shook hands with Tchigorsky. To his intense surprise he saw that the face of the stranger was disfigured in the same way as that of his uncle. Conscious that his gaze was somewhat rude he looked down. Tchigorsky smiled. Very little escaped him and to him the young man's mind was as clear as a brook.

"My appearance startles you," he said. "Some day you will learn how your uncle and myself came to be both disfigured in this terrible way. That secret will be disclosed when the horror that haunts this house is lifted."

"Will it ever be lifted, sir?" Geoffrey asked.

"We can do so at any time," Tchigorsky replied in his deep voice. "You may be surprised to hear that we can place our hands on the guilty party at a moment's notice and bring the offender to justice. Your eyes ask me why we do not do so instantly. We refrain, as the detectives refrain from arresting one or two of a big gang of swindlers, preferring to spread their nets till they have them all in their meshes. There are four people in this business, and we must take the lot of them, or there will be no peace for the house of Ravenspur. You follow me?"

The proofreader on a small middle-west daily was a woman of great precision and extreme propriety. One day a reporter succeeded in getting into type an item about "Willie Brown, the boy who was burned in the west end by a live wire."

On the following day the reporter found on his desk a frigid note asking "Which is the west end of a boy?"

It took only an instant to reply.

"The end the son sets on, of course."—Ladies' Home Journal.

An official memorandum regarding war orders states that at least nine-hundred million dollars' worth of war material and equipment has been ordered by the allies from Canada, and that this expenditure does not include that incurred on behalf of the Canadian contingents, which exceeds twenty-three millions. Seventy-two Canadian companies have been given orders for shrapnel shells, and sixty-seven are engaged in making the various parts required. The orders placed in the United States amount to more than a billion dollars.

The Kaiser's Plans

Will Punish Emperor Joseph For Not Having Kept His End up in the Conflict

The Press Bureau's official eye-witness at the British front sends a new version of German aims gleaned from captured German officers, who say that the Austrian empire is to be dismembered, part of it going to Italy and part of it to Germany. This is the price, according to these officers, Austria must pay for the failure of her arms.

It is said in addition by these men that Germany will insist upon the annexation of Belgium to a new German confederation, to include all Germanic peoples and the Scandinavians. Antwerp, according to these views, which are pronounced with great assurance, is to be made an international port, and the whole of this scheme is to be brought about through the offices of the Pope.

"Conversation with captured officers and the better educated prisoners has thrown considerable light on the views of the general situation now held by the German army.

"It is freely acknowledged that Germany started the war, but opinion seems to be divided regarding her intention to occupy Belgium permanently. The belief is that she would not have crossed the Meuse if England had remained neutral. The belief is that she would have advanced through South Belgium and Luxembourg, thinking Great Britain would take it in the right way, as long as Germany maintained that she desired no territory in Europe no' already occupied by German-speaking people. It is admitted that Germany's strategic frontier in the Vosges must be improved.

"The most important point in the views now held is a frank admission that since the Austrians have failed so badly in the present way and have had to be bolstered up by the armed strength of Germany she will have to pay for it and must bleed.

"The German prisoners hold that the Austrian empire will cease to exist. The Germans will give away some of its territory to Italy, and will include the German speaking portion of Austria in the German empire, and also Luxembourg.

"The Germans will welcome the Duchy of Poland as a buffer between themselves and Russia, and will insist on Belgium joining the German zollverein, Antwerp becoming an international port.

"There will be a great central European confederation of the Germanic peoples formed, to include the Scandinavian. The Germans look forward to the good offices of the Pope, though the necessity for this is regretted because it is not thought that the Papal influence is compatible with the attainment of the pan-American aims. These views are based on inspired and highly-colored newspaper accounts which are cleverly edited from the official communiques."

New Floating Mine

It Has Many Advantages Over Those In Use by Other Nations

The British navy has developed a new type of mine, which, according to the Scotsman, marks a new era in this branch of warfare. The German and French floating mines have not presented such a very difficult problem, because it has been comparatively easy to sweep them up, owing to their suspension tackle. The new British mine has no floats and no tackle. It can be ejected from a torpedo tube or incontinently thrown overboard. If desired, it can be set to rest on the sea floor until the minute chosen by those placing it, when it will come up, not to the surface, but to the proper depth at which to meet the rushing bows of a ship.

As soon as the mine, floating free, reaches a certain depth there is set up a series of movements which put into operation a tiny propeller, and this promptly kicks the mine up to the proper level, and then stops until again called upon. It is not a mine easily caught in sweeping operations, as it progresses under water in a series of slow "leaps," which never reveal it, as it cannot leap beyond its fixed limit of buoyancy.

Many Butcher Shops Close

Two thousand butchers' shop have been closed in England since the beginning of the war. The increased prices of meats and the effort in most households to economize closely, has been the cause for the decreased consumption, which has hit the retail butchers very hard.

Probably more meat than ever before is being imported into the British Isles, but a large proportion of it goes immediately into the hands of the government for supplying the soldiers a home and abroad.

The business of the average retail butcher, according to trade journals, has decreased twenty per cent.

Every Frenchman not in uniform now wears a brassard on his arm to show he is on special duty, for it is a mark of shame not to be in service.
